BIOBLITZ by NUS SAVE

Join us for four days (and one night) of biodiversity surveys!

WHAT IS BIOBLITZ?

BioBlitz is a citizen scientist activity open to members of the school. You will be able to join Biodiversity Cell members in surveying and keeping a record of the biodiversity found on the Kent Ridge campus. Through this event, we hope:

1. To establish an updated biodiversity database of the flora and fauna that can be found on the Kent Ridge campus, such that we have a better understanding of the state of biodiversity on campus.
2. To conduct a long-term scientific observation of the changes to the state of biodiversity on the Kent Ridge campus over time, providing useful data to inform future decision-making processes conducted by the school regarding factors affecting biodiversity, such as development (not exhaustive).
3. To provide opportunities to members of the school to experience citizen science activities, engaging in the scientific endeavour while learning and discovering the flora and fauna hidden in plain sight all around us.

WHAT WILL WE BE DOING?

There will be four days and one night of surveys which you can sign up for, each focusing on a different group of biodiversity. During the survey, you will be split into small groups and led by our experienced and enthusiastic facilitators/guides!
